The Frankfort Commonwealth.

A. G. HODGES & CO., PROPRIETORS.

J. H. JOHNSON, Editor.

The Proprietors of the Commonwealth, grateful for the generous patronage which has been bestowed upon them, are determined to furnish their patrons a journal which shall be unequalled in any of the departments which comprise a first class newspaper.

Published at the Capital of the State, it will be enabled to furnish its readers with the latest intelligence of the actions of the higher courts and of the various departments of the State. It will also contain the latest telegraphic news of stirring events, and also of the New York, Cincinnati, Louisville and New Orleans markets.

In politics the Commonwealth will be conservative, occupying a middle and antagonistic ground in reference to the two extremes. The old parties broken up, and old issues virtually dead, the vital question at present is Union or disunion. The Commonwealth is for the Union, believing it to be the greatest safeguard for our rights, as well as our most effective auxiliary in our efforts to obtain redress for our wrongs. Its conductors do not regard disunion as a remedy for any of the wrongs of the South, but rather an aggravation. It will contend for the equality of the States in the Union, and for the absolute non-interference by Congress with the domestic affairs of the States and Territories.

We shall aim to make the Commonwealth an acceptable and appropriate fireside companion. It will contain selections from the choicest literature of the day, prose, poetry, &c.

The WEEKLY will be printed on extra double medium paper, in new and beautiful type. Terms, in advance, for the Tri-Weekly, $4 per annum. Terms, for the Weekly $2 per annum.

Fever and Ague,

from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasm of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery system from it. While the sun is below the horizon this vaporizing near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and excreting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete not only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the insistent of our organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in the internal excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the central organs with congestive violence. This is the CHILLS. But in this effort fails. Then the fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the stages of the disease, and it is in the midst of this disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not removed.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels from the system all absorbed miasm, and keeps those who are free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease. Consequently it not only cures, but protects from the great variety of ailments which are induced by this malarious infection, such as Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb, or Malarial Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Erysipelas, Catarrhs, Asthma, Palpitation, Belicose, Dropsy, Hysteria, Dysentery, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "Ague Cure" removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excretories to expel the virus from the system; and these organs by degrees become habituated to do this their office according to the laws of nature, and we term acclimation. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while this "Ague Cure" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe that this is a sure as well as a safe remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the miasmatic infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

SPEECH OF HON. JOHN A. PRALL.

In support of the resolution reported by him from the Committee on Federal Relations, declaring the position of Kentucky in the existing war, delivered in the Senate of Kentucky, December 24, 1861.

MR. SPEAKER—

The committee on Federal Relations, who have instructed me to report the resolution, which is now before the Senate, have thought that inasmuch as the action of this General Assembly at an early period of the session, by which we called forth the military strength of the State, only referred, in direct terms, to the recent invasion of our soil by the Confederate armies, which we pledged the energies of the Commonwealth, with the aid of our Government, to repel, it was fit and appropriate now that we should announce that it is not the purpose of Kentucky to abandon that Government which, in this great emergency, has come so promptly to our rescue, but that we will still follow its fortunes when the theatre of the war shall be removed beyond our borders.

The committee have also attempted to compress within the compass of a single resolution, in connection with this declaration, a clear and emphatic statement of the position which Kentucky has hitherto occupied pending the great and momentous struggle of our Government against the formidable efforts which have been made for its destruction. The attitude of our State in this great crisis of the country has been the subject of constant misconstruction and misapprehension. At the onset of this great rebellion, with an earnest and patriotic zeal, Kentucky entered upon the work of conciliation and compromise, in the hope that her interposition might be effective in arresting the ruin which seemed impending over the country. And even at a later period, after the fierce and bloody conflict had begun, she still, so far, clung to the hope that she might yet be able to mediate for the restoration of harmony and peace, that she declined, for the time, to furnish her quota of troops or to take part in the war. And this position, which she assumed with motives so honorable and patriotic, and which was sometimes misapprehended, but more frequently perverted by those whose wish was father to the treacherous thought, and has been construed as placing the State in an attitude of absolute independence and separation from the Federal Union, occupying precisely the same relations to the Government of which we form a part, and to which we have steadily adhered, and to the enemies who are attempting to destroy it. Nothing could be farther from the truth of history, nor more at variance with the lofty and patriotic sentiments and purposes of those who have guided the policy of Kentucky through this stormy period. The candid historian of these great events will record that however that policy may have seemed to change, it has been in strict adaptation to the shifting exigencies of the times, and in perfect harmony with a sentiment of loyalty deeply implanted in the hearts of our people, and which knows no change.

The neutrality which secessionists have attempted to fasten upon us, is but another name for secession, and secession under whatever name, and in whatever form and guise, has been sternly and indignantly rejected and spurned by our people as often as their voice has been spoken at the polls. And Kentucky has taken no position by any action of her Legislature, nor in the clear and statesman-like resolutions of the Senator from Kenton, (Mr. Fisk), which were adopted by the Senate in May last, nor in the forcible and luminous address of her delegates to the Border State Convention, that sat in this hall, nor in any other authoritative declarations of the State, which did not comport, in her judgment, with the clearest and fullest loyalty and the firmest adherence to the Union and the Government.

This attempted mediation of Kentucky has been from the beginning thwarted and spurned, and finally defeated by those who, in the madness of their ambitious aims, were bent upon the ruin of their country. When the Legislature met here in March, the plot of the revolutionary leaders had been so far successful that seven of the cotton States had been wildly precipitated into rebellion. But the march of the revolution seemed to have paused. Tennessee, North Carolina, Virginia and Arkansas, had declared for the Union by a decided, and, in some of them, an overwhelming vote of their people, the last time they were permitted to vote, till they came to give their ballots at the point of Secession bayonets. At once the patriotic purpose was conceived of bringing to bear the conservatism and loyalty of these and the other four adhering States of the South, and through their concentrated influence to restore the seceding States to the Union, and a convention of these eight States was called, to assemble in this city, in the month of May. Everything looked promising and hopeful for the speedy restoration of fraternity and peace. The umpirage was fully chosen. Standing thus between the extremes, and closely identified with both, it can scarcely be doubted that whatever basis of adjustment might have been proposed by the united action of this body, would have been cheerfully conceded by the North, and that the Union sentiment thus strengthened would have overwhelmed the revolutionists in the seceded States.

But unhappily for the country these agitators saw the coming triumph of the Union through the peaceful agencies which Kentucky had inaugurated. There was about to be a period of cool reflection and statesman-like deliberation, when reason could resume its sway, and the wild passions that had been aroused would have time to calm. And in these clear beams of hope to the patriot's heart, they saw the omens of their own destruction. The fell spirit of secessionism was engendered in violence. Its element was the storm, and the sunlight of truth and reflection would blast and wither it. The southern heart must be fired again—the tempest must be raised again till the surging waves should engulf the border States, and till they should be brought in to stand as a bulwark for the South, and to ward off the blow which it had provoked. Again the work of precipitation was renewed, and Sumpter fell, and Virginia, North Carolina, Arkansas, and Tennessee, were hurled into the fierce vortex of revolution, in defiance of the last expression of the will of their people. North Carolina and Tennessee had not only elected conventions overwhelmingly Union, but had refused to consider the question of a change of their political relations by voting that no conventions should be held, and their Legislatures, which had been elected long before, and without reference to the pending questions, assembled and passed the ordinances of secession. And the conventions in whose hands the people of Arkansas and Virginia were assumed to have lodged their sovereignty, and a majority of whom had been elected as Union men, faithfully declared, and attempted to consummate the separation of their States from the Union. And before the people of these States were moved with the force of a vote upon the ratification of these acts, which were designed to seal their destinies forever, they were consumed and fastened upon them beyond the reach of any power within their limits—and an overwhelming military force was at hand to crush out, by the power of the sword, the fervid but unorganized loyalty of the people, and to intimidate into submission every freeman in whose heart there remained a lingering love for the Union of his fathers.

And in hot haste the flushed and maddened army rushed on to beleague the capital of the nation. And thus it was that our efforts to interpose and mediate were wickedly thwarted, and thus was begun the bloody and horrid war which is being so fiercely waged for the destruction of the mildest and most beneficent government ever instituted among men.

But Kentucky, although standing aloof from the conflict, was yet true to the Union. Happily the instrumentalities by which treason had manacled and subjugated the free men of other States were not here at hand. We had not a pliant Legislature ready to pass the secession ordinance, nor to vote the six millions of dollars required by that false and recreant Kentucky, Inspector General Buckner, to enable him to arm his State Guard and enslave our people. But Kentucky was necessary to swell the grandeur of this monstrous confederacy which was to be erected upon the ruins of the Union. The solemn verdict of her people, pronounced at the polls, and through all the avenues through which the popular will could gain expression, must be reversed by the sword. And at once the Inspector General, into whose hands we had been asked to commit the destinies of the State, which he has so foully betrayed, retired into Tennessee with such of his Guard as he could seduce away, and came back at the head of a Confederate army to waste and desolate Kentucky with fire and sword, and to scourge her into submission as a chained and conquered province of the Southern Confederacy.

I have thus, Mr. Speaker, attempted to trace the leading outlines of this "bloodiest picture in the book of time," and to glance at the sweeping progress of this great rebellion with special reference to the relations which Kentucky has sustained to these great events up to the time when she was startled from her dreams of conciliation and peace by the tramp of the invader upon her soil, and by the ruin of her homes, the devastation of her fields, and the murder of her citizens at the hands of those against whom, in the abounding fullness of her fraternity, she hitherto refused to strike a blow. It remains, as pertinent to the scope of the resolution before us, that I should speak very briefly of those grave and momentous subjects in their broader national bearing. Secession, or the assumption of a constitutional right in each State in the exercise of its reserved sovereignty, of its motion to rend the bonds of the Union, and sever its connection with the government, is a pernicious and glaring heresy, utterly at war with the fundamental principles which form the basis of our institutions. I am a State rights man and have always been—but I am no less a United States rights man. Ours is a complex political system, in which the wisdom of its venerable and illustrious founders happily blended in perfect harmony the power of the States in the control of their local and internal affairs, with that pervading and supreme authority of the General Government over the subjects committed to its charge, which constitutes us a nation. The Federal Union is a government, and not a confederation or a league. The bonds of the old confederation were too frail and weak to hold together a great and united people, and the constitution was adopted in its stead to "form a more perfect union." "We, the people of the United States,"—in these few words of its preamble, the constitution declares the source of its origin, and proclaims the deep and enduring foundations upon which it rests its authority. It is emphatically a government not of States, but of the people—derived from the people, sustained by the people, and in the exercise of its great functions acting directly upon the people. And a State has no more power to annul the laws of Congress, or interrupt their enforcement, than Congress has to repeal or obstruct the laws of a State. And if there be a conflict of jurisdiction, or a claim that the government has transcended its legitimate authority, there is but one tribunal competent to decide the question, and that is the Federal Judiciary. Such is our government; such is the system which our fathers framed "for themselves and their posterity." And thus with the history of the world before them, and looking with prophetic vision far into the distant future, they so formed their noble work that internal security and social order, under the direction of local magistracies, might be compatible with the vigor and unity and the boundless expansion of the glorious empire they were founding. And all the secession ordinances that have emanated from all the treasonable conclaves that have plotted the ruin of their country, cannot absolve a single American citizen from the allegiance which he owes to that government.

And it is such a government as this, in the full meridian of its imperial greatness, that restless and ambitious men are attempting to destroy. Everywhere upon the land and upon the sea its axis of protection has sheltered millions of freemen in security and happiness. Under the mild influence of its beneficent institutions it was bounding forward in its glorious career of prosperity and greatness. The splendid monuments of advancing civilization and enterprise, fostered by the benign influence of free government, were teeming on every hand, and far to the westward stretching wide in primeval wilderness the grand old forest and uncultured prairie were tempting on her hardy sons to new conquests of secure and prosperous industry. And of all upon whom its blessings, like the genial showers of Heaven, were descending, not a man could say that that government had wronged or oppressed him. And is this land, so fair and once so happy, to be drenched in blood, and this heritage of ours, around which cluster so many precious memories, and so many cherished hopes, to be overwhelmed in ruin because the ambitious aspirations of certain gentlemen have been rejected, and a public magistrate, distasteful to the views of a portion of our citizens, has been chosen by the people, under the forms of the Constitution, to administer the government for a limited term? Is this temple of civil and religious liberty—the hope of the world, and which was designed to endure forever—to be wrung in flames like the grand and massive temple of the Ephesians, in order that the names of the incendiaries who lighted the torch, may live in an immortality of infamy, and hand down their names to posterity, blasted though they be, with the execrations of all mankind?

These States rights gentlemen have been clamorous, too, against those efforts of the government to preserve its existence, which they have been pleased to denounce as coercion. Coercion was not to be endured when it meant the maintenance of the laws by a power competent to their enforcement, and required submission upon the part of the people to the authority of their own government. But when the question is, whether Kentucky shall be coerced into submission to the authority of a bogus government, with which she does not recognize, and whose assumptions she has ever repelled, their principles all vanish, and they are ready to engage in the unholy work. We have heard much of the horrors of subjugation. "Would you fight your Southern brethren, and aid in subjugating the South?" This is the soft appeal to our tender sensibilities, which has been ringing in our ears ever since the war began. And yet these

The nation cannot consent or passively submit to its own dismemberment. Kentucky cannot consent to become the border between separate and hostile governments, and the theatre of their bloody and interminable wars. For who can hope for peace in such an event, or believe that when the restraints and safeguards of a common government shall be removed, with all the alleged causes of discontent remaining, and infinitely intensified, its rankling and disaffected members can lay aside without conflicts too horrid to be contemplated, and which will only terminate when vitality shall be extinct. Our country is by nature indissoluble. Everywhere—all over it—in its grand and changeless physical features—the eternal hand of Heaven has stamped the impress of its unity. If I may appropriate the language of one of America's most illustrious living orators, (Mr. Everett)—"The swarming millions who throng the course of our noble rivers and their tributaries may consent to exchange the charter they hold from the hand of Heaven for a bit of parchment signed at Montgomery or Richmond, but it can only be when the Alleghanies and the Rocky Mountains, which form the eastern and western walls of the imperial valley, shall sink to the level of the sea, and when the Mississippi and the Missouri shall flow back to their fountains."

And in such a struggle as this, involving results so momentous to the nation and to this Commonwealth, must the burning words of shame be spoken that some of Kentucky's sons are in arms against her, and in sympathy with her enemies? In the political theories of the Secession school, State authority and State action have been constantly held to be paramount and supreme and of binding force and obligation upon every citizen, and bitter and fierce have been the curses they have hurled at those patriotic and heroic men of Tennessee and Virginia, and other States, who have refused to bow in submission to the behests of Legislatures and conventions which defied the will of the people, and thousands of whom, driven from their homes by a storm of persecution, have sought a refuge and asylum here. These men, we have been told, should have adhered to their States, and supported their action, whatever might have been their individual sentiments, and however devoted may have been their love for the Union against which they were commanded to revolt. But Kentucky has acted, and her sovereignty has spoken. By an overwhelming vote of a Legislature, which came fresh from her people, and which was elected with immediate reference to the grave questions upon which it was called to act—she has taken her position—a position, too, which involves no conflict of allegiance, but announces her firm and unwavering support of her Government, and these State sovereignty gentlemen unblinking defy her authority. With them State action is omnipotent and irresistible, and when it comes in aid of treason and rebellion but powerless in the support of loyalty to the Government of which we form a part.

It has been reserved for these Kentucky statesmen to give the grand climax to the pestilent and wicked heresies which had their origin in Charleston, some thirty years ago, and which we supposed had culminated in the secession movement of the present day. They have gone far beyond the original apostles of their despicable faith. South Carolina, in 1832, very modestly assumed the right in virtue of her inherent and reserved sovereignty as a State, to annul the laws of Congress which she might choose to regard as unconstitutional, and to which she might find it inconvenient to submit, while still remaining a member of the Union. And the only advance she has made in the intervening period, has been to deduce her constitutional right to throw off the Union altogether. But these States rights theorists of ours have expanded these doctrines to their logical results, as if to demonstrate, by a practical illustration, the utter social disorganization to which they inevitably lead, and they have discovered that, as a State—as one of the members of the Union—has a right, in virtue of its sovereignty, to annul the laws, and throw off the authority of the common government, so each citizen has similar powers, springing from his individual and personal sovereignty, in reference to the government of a State. And to carry into practical operation this deduction of theirs, which seems fairly to result from the premises, they have recently assembled in Russellville, some forty or fifty in number, without authority from any one, and representing nobody but themselves, and having aggregated their respective personal sovereignties into the form of a small confederation, have solemnly nullified all the laws of this Legislature, repudiated the taxes imposed by the State, and deliberately excommunicated the entire State government, and seceded from its authority. Even His Excellency, the Governor, has not escaped them, but has been decapitated among the rest. It was of no avail that he had faithfully vetoed all the laws to which they objected, and put forth his whole constitutional power to arrest their passage. He should have sought some extra-constitutional means to have resisted the action of this obstinate body. He must suffer for his remissness, and off flies the gubernatorial head. And while we are sitting here, supposing that we are passing laws and sending them up to the Governor for his approval, we are suddenly informed that we are all functus officio, and that all power and dominion within this Commonwealth is in the hands of Governor Geo. W. Johnson and his council of ten—a Governor for whom no human being in the State ever voted, and a council who appointed themselves. These, sir, are the fruits of secessionism—thus practically illustrated and developed—social disintegration, the upturning of all the foundations of government and order, resulting, at last, in anarchy and ruin. Can there be a hope for the preservation of civil and religious liberty, and the maintenance of free popular government upon this content except in the uprising of a free and outraged people to crush out these pestilent heresies forever?

These States rights gentlemen have been clamorous, too, against those efforts of the government to preserve its existence, which they have been pleased to denounce as coercion. Coercion was not to be endured when it meant the maintenance of the laws by a power competent to their enforcement, and required submission upon the part of the people to the authority of their own government. But when the question is, whether Kentucky shall be coerced into submission to the authority of a bogus government, with which she does not recognize, and whose assumptions she has ever repelled, their principles all vanish, and they are ready to engage in the unholy work. We have heard much of the horrors of subjugation. "Would you fight your Southern brethren, and aid in subjugating the South?" This is the soft appeal to our tender sensibilities, which has been ringing in our ears ever since the war began. And yet these very men are ready to fight Kentucky, and to unite with her invaders, with flame and faggot, to subjugate and conquer their own native land.

Never before has the manhood and chivalry of Kentucky been invoked to action amid circumstances and events which should so thrill and fire the heart of every patriot. And I am proud to know that while some have been indifferent, and some have been false, thousands of true and chivalric men have responded to the call of their country. In some regions of the State the ardent and indomitable spirit which burned in the hearts of our fathers, whose deeds of valor have made the name of Kentucky illustrious throughout the world, seems to have awakened in their sons at the first blast of the tocsin. And never did the mustering clansmen of the Highlands come forth from copse and heath and glen when summoned by the clarion notes of their chieftain to follow the fiery cross with firmer step or more dauntless spirit, than have these true-hearted and fearless men gathered around the insulted standard of their country. We have fought upon distant fields before, but now, for the first time in all our glorious history, the tramp of the foeman pollutes our soil, and we are called to defend and shield from desecration our hearthstones and our homes. We must conquer or be enslaved, and bow our freeborn necks to take the yoke. Let us, then, arouse with the heroic spirit of freedom—and—

"Strike for our altars and our fires;
Strike for the green graves of our sires—
God and our native land."

And when the invader shall be driven back from our limits, the mission of Kentucky will not yet be ended, but side by side with the brave men from our sister States of the North, who have responded to our call and hurried to our rescue, Kentuckians will follow wherever patriot hands shall bear forward the glorious flag of our country. And as the armies of the Republic advance, thousands of true and loyal men, who have been crushed beneath the heel of violence and revolution, will greet their deliverers and will hail with wild shouts of joy the starry emblem of their country. No nobler cause than ours ever nerved the arm of the patriot. It is a war of government against anarchy, of law and order against violence and confusion, of regulated liberty against wild and unbridled license, of nationality against disintegration, and of loyalty against treason. Upon its issue depends the fate of an empire and the destinies of millions of men. Its result must determine whether a nation shall live in all the halcyon glories of the future which Heaven has spread before it, or perish forever; torn from its high place by the hand of violence, and go down in ruins amid the sombre gloom of centuries. In such a struggle may the smiles of Heaven light up our banners wherever they may stream, and "may God defend the right."

The following resolutions were adopted in the Lower House of Congress, on the 3rd inst. They were offered by Mr. Dunn, of Indiana:

Whereas, Henry C. Burnett, a member of the House from Kentucky, in open rebellion against the Government of the United States—therefore,

Resolved, That the said Henry C. Burnett be, and he is hereby expelled from this House, and that the Governor of Kentucky be notified of his expulsion.

Resolved, That the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed not to pay Burnett's salary, which has accrued since the close of the extra session.

CAPTURE OF REBEL STEAMERS.—We copy the following from the Mobile Advertiser of the 24th ult:

We are informed on good authority that private despatches, received in this city last night, from Handsboro', state that the steamer Oregon put in there last evening and reported the capture of the steamers California, of the mail line, the Lewis, the John Briggs, and one other vessel.

We hope the report is not well founded, but fear it is, as the Gulf was known to be filled with Lincoln gunboats. The steamers, except the Lewis, left here yesterday morning.

WHEREAS, the following act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, cordially approved by me on the 20th instant, is the law of the land, I think proper, in the exercise of my executive duties, to make the same promptly known to the public, as I do hereby, and I do hereby enjoin all citizens and residents of this State to be obedient to all the requirements thereof, to the end that the humane and noble purposes of the Legislature may be faithfully executed. The said act of the General Assembly is as follows:

Resolved, providing for the peace and quiet of the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Whereas, the people of Kentucky have, from the beginning, ardently desired and still cherish the hope that they may not be involved in the unnatural prevailing civil strife; that Kentucky is now, as

FOR THE

SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE.

The FRANKFORT COMMONWEALTH will be published daily during the approaching session of the General Assembly of Kentucky. A competent reporter will be in attendance in each House, and an accurate report of the proceedings of each day will be given the ensuing morning. The Commonwealth will thus afford the most convenient medium of communication between the members of the Legislature and their constituents, keeping the latter informed not only of the manner in which their own local interests are represented, but of the general course of legislative proceedings, and saving to the former the trouble and labor of a great deal of private correspondence which would otherwise be indispensable. Beside reports of the proceedings of each House of the Kentucky Legislature, the Commonwealth will furnish a summary of all the more important items of the current news of the day, foreign and domestic, war, political and miscellaneous.

The important subjects which will claim the attention of the General Assembly are of vital importance to all the citizens of the State of Kentucky, and we shall hope to receive a large list of subscribers to our Daily paper.

The DAILY COMMONWEALTH, for the session, will be $1 50. Any person procuring us five subscribers, and forwarding the money, shall have the sixth copy for his trouble.

The TRI-WEEKLY COMMONWEALTH is published at $4 per year. The Session Daily will be sent to all the Tri-Weekly subscribers, with 50 cents additional charge. Any person procuring us five subscribers to the Tri-Weekly, and forwarding us the money, shall have the sixth copy for his trouble.

The WEEKLY COMMONWEALTH will be furnished to subscribers, during the session of the Legislature, for 50 cents; and for a year, including the session, for $2 00. Persons procuring five subscribers to the session weekly, or yearly weekly, and forwarding the money to us, shall receive the sixth copy free of charge.

TROUBLE AT CASEYVILLE, KY.—The steamer Golden State, which left Paducah on Friday evening last, was met at Cave-in-Rock, by a messenger, who informed Capt. King that there was a body of six hundred rebels at Caseyville, awaiting the arrival of his boat and the Charley Bowen, intending to seize them on their arrival. The Golden State immediately put back to Paducah, when Gen. Smith ordered a gunboat with two hundred infantry and a company of cavalry to proceed to Caseyville to dislodge the rebels.

In the absence of John J. Roberts, former clerk of the joint committee on Enrollments—he being a soldier in the Federal army—the undersigned have appointed Jos. B. Lewis to fill the vacant clerkship. Members of the Legislature, and others having business with the committee on Enrollments, will, at all times during session hours, find Mr. Lewis, the clerk, in the committee room of the Senate, who will be prepared to give any information desired with regard to bills which have come to the hands of the committee on Enrollments.

It is announced in a dispatch from Washington, that Gen. Benham has been placed under arrest for permitting Floyd and his men to escape, after complete arrangements had been made for their capture by Gen. Rosecrans. It is charged that if Gen. Benham had obeyed his instructions and carried out his part of the scheme, Floyd and his entire command would now be prisoners.

The Covington Journal, a State Rights journal, alluding to the Convention recently held at Russellville, by which Geo. W. Johnson was appointed Provisional Governor of Kentucky, calls it a "revolutionary movement," and says: "We need scarcely add that we regard the movement as not only ill-advised but utterly indefensible."

MR. SEWARD FOR A BLOODLESS WAR.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Anti-Slavery Standard writes:

Let me give you a few sentences from the sage of Auburn, which I can vouch for, which I know to be uttered. Said he, "The effective part of the war, on our side, is over. There may be more fighting, but the less of it the surer we are of speedy peace. Every battle saved, which can be honorably avoided, is a gain to the cause of the Union. The real danger is over. If we escape danger in our foreign affairs all will be well."

The committee appointed by the Vermont Legislature to examine into its Personal Liberty Bill, has reported, declaring it in conflict with the Constitution of the United States; and the bill was accordingly repealed by the Legislature.

Kentucky State Agricultural Society.

The Seventh Annual meeting of the Kentucky State Agricultural Society was held at the Agricultural Rooms in Frankfort, on Wednesday, Dec. 4th, 1861.

The President, L. J. Bradford, in the chair.

The proceedings of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The Treasurer's report and the Biennial report to the Legislature, were read and approved.

The Financial condition of the Society was shown to be as follows, viz:

Cash in Treasurer's hands	$7,295 63
Premiums on hand	860 00
Due by Warren Co. Ag. Society	700 00
Total	$8,855 63

On motion of Brutus J. Clay, the rule requiring nominations for officers to be made by the members of the respective districts was suspended, and they were made without reference to the districts.

The Society then went into an election of officers for the ensuing year.

Col. L. J. Bradford, of Bracken county, was unanimously re-elected President.

Col. Bradford, upon taking the Chair, said:

That when he reached the city he had no idea of a re-election. He thought two years a sufficient term of service for any individual, as it was a serious task upon the time of any one who had private avocations demanding his attention, while the term was all sufficient to him to do such good as he might be able to carry out by his suggestions. The office was one of high honor, and he regretted that circumstances had prevented the holding of two annual fairs during his term of service, as then he should have felt himself justified in declining a re-election.

Last fall, looking to our fairs to be held in September, he had taken an extensive trip, during which he visited Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, Canada, Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, and interchanged opinions and views with distinguished agriculturists and mechanics. It was arranged that delegates from each of these localities should meet at Louisville, in September, and discuss questions of vital importance to the agricultural and commercial interests of the people of our country. The fair was not held, as our most experienced friends deemed it inexpedient, though his individual opinion was different; but he has since had every reason to believe that the postponement was most judicious.

He spoke of the tobacco fair of Louisville as having been most auspicious in its results, and having added two millions to the agricultural value of the staple in our State, while it had increased in many sections at least 50 per cent. The President elect said he should take an early opportunity to suggest to the Board the policy of arranging for a more extended collection of agricultural and mechanical statistics, by holding correspondence with sheriffs and others who are able to give information. By this means the number of horses, hogs, and cattle; the condition of crops; the prospects of future yields, and the general condition of our productive industry, could be collected, put in tabular form, and by publication in the press, be made known to all who are interested. By the same, or other agencies, the most recent inventions, and their practical value, could be promulgated extensively where the knowledge would do the most good.

P. Swigert, of Franklin county, was elected Vice President for the First District; J. B. O'Bannon, of Jefferson, Vice President for the Second District, and Jno. G. Holloway, Vice President for the Third District.

DIRECTORS.

First District—O. H. Burbridge, of Bourbon; Zeb. Ward, of Woodford; Dr. L. P. Tarleton, of Fayette; Caleb Walton, of Harrison; and J. H. G. Bush, of Clarke.

Second District—G. Mallory, of Jefferson; S. T. Drane, of Shelby; Geo. Denny, of Garrard; Alf. Allen, of Breckinridge; and Felix G. Murphy, of Nelson.

Third District—Jno. P. Campbell, Sr., of Christian; B. E. Ratliff, of Caldwell; Edward Rumsey, of Muhlenberg; R. C. Harrod, of Union, and J. J. Towles, of Henderson.

The Society then adjourned.

EVENING SESSION.

The Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society met at 2 o'clock.

On motion, the salary of the Recording and Corresponding Secretary for the ensuing year was fixed at $300.

Col. Jas. S. Wallace was elected Secretary, and Mr. J. W. Tate was re-elected Treasurer.

At the suggestion of the President, Mr. Burbridge moved the appointment of a committee to prepare a circular, to be sent to sheriffs and other persons in the several counties, to obtain agricultural statistics; and that the committee offer "The Kentucky Farmer," if published, or some other Agricultural paper, to those who will furnish these statistics; and that the committee also recommend to farmers the importance of insuring their houses, barns, and other property. Adopted, and Messrs. O. H. Burbridge, Swigert and Bradford, were appointed as the committee.

Col. Bradford also recommended to the Board the offering by the Society of Agricultural papers as premiums; which recommendation will be considered by the Board hereafter.

On motion, the Board adjourned, subject to be called together at any time by the President.

After the regular adjournment, the Board was again called together by the President, Col. Bradford, to acknowledge the receipt of a large number of valuable documents and reports.

On motion, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of Kentucky State Agricultural Society be gratefully tendered to the Hon. John J. Crittenden, for the large and valuable collection of Federal Reports presented to us this day, and that we recognize in his attention to the industrial interests of our State, his full conviction that agriculture, in its most comprehensive sense, is the basis of all individual, State and national prosperity.

Resolved, That the fraternal attention of the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, be called to-day by the receipt of a large number of their Reports for the year 1860, '61 and '62, through the agency of their Corresponding Secretary, John H. CHURCH, Esq., is acknowledged in the confident hope that the relations of our respective societies to the State may always be marked by the same friendly interchange of information valuable to the different constituencies represented by us.

Resolved, That the Kentucky State Agricultural Society be invited to send a delegate to the Ohio State Board of Agriculture, to be held at Columbus, Ohio, on the 10th inst.

The committee was discharged, and the memorial was then referred to the Finance committee.

Mr. GOODLOE—Propositions and Grievances—A bill to amend chapter 2, article 2, section 88, of the Civil Code of Practice, ordered to be printed, and made special order for Friday at 12 o'clock.

Mr. ROBINSON—Judiciary—A bill to prohibit the marriage of first cousins, with the opinion it should not pass. The vote was taken upon concurring in the report of the committee, and it was decided in the negative.

After some debate, the question was taken upon ordering the bill to a third reading, and it was decided in the negative by yeas 10, nays 12.

RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. CHILES offered the following resolution, which was adopted, viz:

Resolved, That the committee on Internal Improvement be instructed to inquire into the expediency, propriety, and constitutionality of amending the laws of this Commonwealth in relation to bridges, ferries, and turnpike roads, so as to permit all baggage wagons, trains, carts, ambulances, horses and mules of the armies of the United States of America, and of the State of Kentucky, to pass and travel over said bridges, ferries, and turnpikes without the payment of tolls; and that said committee report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. ALEXANDER offered the following resolution, which was adopted, viz:

Resolved, That the committee on the Judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of abolishing the office of President of the Board of Internal Improvement, and of transferring the business of that department to the supervision of the Treasurer, and to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. WALTON offered a resolution requesting the Judiciary committee to bring in a bill to abolish the equity and criminal courts in the 1st and 4th Judicial districts, adopted.

SPECIAL ORDER FOR 11 O'CLOCK.

"A bill to amend the registration laws." Was, on motion of Mr. GROVER, postponed until to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

HOUSE BILLS TAKEN UP.

An act to amend an act to amend the common school law fixing the number of school days in a month: passed.

An act to change the line between the counties of Barren and Allen: referred to the committee on Propositions and Grievances.

An act to permit John L. Chism to peddle in Marion, Taylor and Adair counties without license: referred to the Finance committee.

An act to authorize the sale of Stanton's Revised Statutes: referred to Finance committee.

An act for the benefit of school district No. 31, in Rockcastle county: passed.

An act to divide school district No. 16, in Meade county: passed.

An act for the benefit of district schools: referred to the committee on Education.

An act concerning common schools: referred to the committee on Education.

An act to amend sec. 879 of the Civil Code of Practice: referred to the committee on Codes of Practice.

THE HOUSE RESOLUTION.

To authorize an additional blanket to the volunteers of Kentucky in the field. [For resolution see proceedings of H. R. of yesterday.]

Mr. GROVER moved that the resolution be referred to the Military committee.

Messrs. ALEXANDER, McHENRY and SPEED opposed the reference.

Mr. GROVER withdrew his motion to refer.

After some further remarks on the resolution, made by several gentlemen.

Mr. WORTHINGTON renewed the motion to refer the resolution to the committee on Military Affairs, to report to-morrow at 11 o'clock.

The resolution was advocated by several gentlemen.

The motion to refer was then rejected by yeas 10, nays 11.

The vote was then taken upon the adoption of the resolution, and it was decided in the affirmative by yeas 21, nays 2.

When Mr. GILLISS' name was called, he said—that having been absent in the committee room necessarily until the moment of calling the yeas and nays on the passage of the resolution, he had hoped that the Senate would either have amended the resolution, or have consented to the motion to refer it to the Military committee, with instructions to report on to-morrow, neither of which has been consented to. And while Senators admit on this floor that portions of the Kentucky volunteers have two blankets already, whilst others have one only; the effect of the resolution, in its present shape, in his opinion, would be to give the "additional blanket" to each class alike—the class with two, as well as that class with one; and as those who are pressing this resolution with such haste, as to preclude the proper motion, that by the resolution an equality in the public benefactions can be dispensed to all alike. He could not, as a friend to the soldier, consent to such an inequality. He voted no.

ATTENTION TAX PAYERS!

THE attention of Tax payers of Franklin county is respectfully called to the following circular:

TO THE SHERIFFS OF KENTUCKY.
The condition of the Treasury makes it necessary, for the purpose of carrying on the Government, that the revenue should be paid into the Treasury as early as possible, and that payments should be made whenever an amount sufficient to justify shall have been collected. I therefore justly and earnestly call upon the sheriffs of the State to use every exertion in their power to collect and pay in the revenue of their respective counties at the earliest possible day, that the credit of the State may not suffer for the want of means to pay off just claims against it. It would be a source of regret to me to take judgment against any of the sheriffs; but my duty will require me to enforce the law against any sheriff who fails to pay in the revenue by the time fixed by law.

GRANT GREEN, Auditor.

AUDITOR'S OFFICE, KY.,
Frankfort, Sept. 12, 1861.

For the purpose of collecting the taxes for the present year, as well as balances due for 1860 and 1861, the undersigned must urge tax payers to be ready when called on, or we will be compelled to enforce the law for collection of taxes. Longer indulgence will not be given.

FRANKFORT AGENCY OF THE NEW YORK LIFE Insurance Company.

At a meeting of the Local Directors of the New York Life Insurance Company, held in the city of Frankfort, Ky., December 4th, 1858, the following was unanimously adopted:

"The undersigned, President and Directors of the Company, have examined the report and exhibit of the New York Life Insurance Company for the half year ending July 1st, 1858, and being satisfied with its prosperous condition, cordially recommend it to the encouragement and support of the community."

The New York Life Insurance Company has been in existence fourteen years, its capital has attained the sum of $1,500,000.

Invested in State stocks, bonds and mortgages on real estate.

We think it a most safe and profitable mode of investing money. The profits accrue to the benefit of the insured, and have averaged not less than 30 per cent. per annum on the premium paid.

Besides these investments in stock, &c., the law of New York requires as additional security, that $100,000 shall be deposited with the State Comptroller, to meet any lawful demands which the Company may fall to pay.

We invite attention to the nature, objects, and advantages of Life Insurance, as set forth by this Institution.

It will be seen by the above statement that this Company is in a flourishing condition. Those desiring information in regard to the subject of Life Insurance, would do well to call on the Local Agent of the above Company, who will give them any information that may be desired, or for reference apply to either member of the Local Board, all of whom are insured in this office.
